

BELLY WARMER RE - DESIGN

a method of remaking an old wool sweater into a nice belly warmer for all your shirts that are now too short.

a >SELF_PASSAGE< method

© copyleft by >wronsov< Nov. 2004

1. get an old sweater, preferably the one with holes on the elbows.

2. cut out the center piece (the other parts you can recycle into other nice things).

3. fold both front and back pieces in half and cut out a nice curve on one and a straight form from the other.

4. hem 1 cm up and down on both pieces. use a 3-step zig-zag to make seams stretch.

5. sew together the pieces with an external zig-zag seam.

6. cut apart the bigger back piece a little asymmetric, about 5 cm from center.

7. hem the edges.

8. attach one long piece of velcro along the top, from edge to side seam.

9. take four smaller pieces of velcro and add on other side.

10. looking something like this.

11. keep warm in your shirts all year.